

WorldDay a day in the world the world in a day

part 1 09:30 - 12:30 - Be the World!

Relive world-as-a-village history on a giant world map

Come be one of 100 people who will

Thumb a ride on Spaceship Earth as a galactic hitchhiker.

Inhabit a basketball-court-sized world map.

Experience a whole-planet scale: Everest under your thumb, the space station at your ankle.

Replay the geographical and historical peopling of the world from the beginning to all 6.4 billion of us.

SlowMo/FreezeFrame the world's timeline, not as earthpolitics, but as in Encyclopedia Galactica.

FastForward beyond yesterday's headlines or last night's news to write the next-edition Encyclopedia Galactica entry about today.

Step into an individual identity that stands for 1% of humanity today.

Use your BigPicture perspective to name humanity's historical tipping points. Name the biggest one "Now"!

break 12:30 - 01:30 - Box lunch or Bring your own part 2 01:30 - 04:00 - Be the Change!

Films, exercises, activities. Learn what wags the world

Identify the most powerful people ever to inhabit the planet.

Become "www-literate" -- "what wags the world".

Spot how the world's idea of "leader(ship)" has moved over time.

Peek over the horizon to spot where the next changes might be coming from.

Watch film-shorts to move your idea of ideas that move the world.

Try on different roles in exercises and activities to get a feel for being the difference that makes a difference.

Medard Gabel has conducted workshops, consulted, and given lectures for over 400 corporations, colleges, universities, high schools and organizations throughout the world. He is the former executive director of the World Game Institute, a UN-affiliated NGO. He worked with Buckminster Fuller for 12 years and is currently the CEO of BigPictureSmallWorld and BigPicture Consulting. While directing the World Game Institute he developed and delivered the World Game and numerous other global and local simulations for clients around the world. He has authored five books on the global energy situation, the global food situation, the U.S. food system, planning, and multinational corporations.

Inspired by the ideas of R. Buckminster Fuller (1895-1983).
